White Construction Group Completes Design-Build Renaissance Academy

CASTLE ROCK, Colo., Oct. 19, 2005 – White Construction Group, a Colorado-based construction firm specializing in commercial construction, design-build, historic restorations and tenant improvement projects, today announced the completion of the design-build Renaissance Academy project.

The Renaissance Academy, located on the former 22-acre Hole in the Wall Ranch in northwest Colorado Springs, Colo., is a small private, nonprofit school that offers a gifted education program. The Renaissance Academy had been searching for a site to build a permanent facility since 1993. The 13,900-square-foot, design-build facility includes a main entry with a compass rose featuring tiles made by the students, vibrant classroom colors, and high ceilings with arches offering an open and spacious feeling. The Renaissance Academy is a contemporary, post-modern building featuring numerous visual way-finding components. The project is valued at $2.1 million. Steve DeThomas served as project manager, and Steve Constable served as superintendent.
