White Construction Group to Break Ground on Elbert County Justice Center

CASTLE ROCK, Colo., June 3, 2008 – White Construction Group, a Colorado-based commercial general construction firm, will break ground for the new Elbert County Justice Center in Kiowa.

The project consists of a 12,000 sq-ft single story building and will feature a heavy timber framed open canopy to capture the old west boardwalk feel of the town.

“We are very excited that construction of the new Justice Center is underway,” said John Metli, Elbert County Commissioner “The new addition will allow us to bring relief to our citizens by returning the court systems to Elbert County.”

The ground-breaking ceremony is open to the public and scheduled for Monday, June 16th at 751 Ute Street in Kiowa.

The White Construction Group Project Team: Seth Noble, project manager; Josh Reitz, superintendent. Project partners include: Office of the Board of County Commissioners, owner; Humphries Poli Architects: Michelle Lopez-Orsini, architect. The expected completion date is Mar. 2009
