White Construction Group Completes Green Roof on Central Branch Library

CASTLE ROCK, Colo., Sept. 9, 2008, – White Construction Group, a Colorado-based commercial general construction firm, recently completed the City and County’s of Denver first Green Roof Project built under the new Greenprint Denver program www.greenprintdenver.org.

Located on the 7th floor balcony of the City and County of Denver’s Central Branch Library, White Construction Group installed a new roof membrane and two new steel framed planters with precast concrete panels. The Denver Botanic Gardens donated plant material and Rainbird donated the irrigation system. The gardens were constructed under LEED® principals.

“The roof garden is a beautiful addition to the city. It gives the public an opportunity to experience and understand the aesthetic, sensible and responsible benefits of sustainable building,” says Courtney White, project manager and LEED® Accredited Professional. White Construction Group’s project superintendent was Jason Alquist and project coordinator, Lisa Werdel.
